

ULTRASOUND | HÔPITAL DE GRANBY, HÔPITAL BROME-MISSISQUOI-PERKINS ET HÔPITAL, CLSC ET CENTRE D'HÉBERGEMENT D'ASBESTOS

Your physician has ordered an ultrasound. An ultrasound consists of imaging the blood vessels and anatomical structures (upper or lower limbs, kidneys, bladder, liver, testicles, neck, abdomen, etc.) of the body, excluding the heart. General ultrasound using a Doppler probe allows for examining blood flow to locate clots or stenosis (narrowing) in the various blood vessels.

ABOUT THE EXAM

- These examinations are by appointment only.
- They cause no pain and pose no risk to your health.
- The examination duration varies depending on the anatomical region observed.
